Education

- University of California, Berkeley—Berkeley, CA
Ph. D., Computer Science: September 2008–present
 - Advisor: Professor Joseph M. Hellerstein. Member of the Database Research Group.
 - Research: distributed systems, large-scale data management, logic programming.
- Queen’s University—Kingston, Ontario
B. Sc. (Hons.), major in Computer Science: September 2002–May 2007
 - Cumulative average: 88.9%. Cumulative average in Computer Science: 92.9%.

Selected Awards

- 2010: NSERC PGS-D Graduate Fellowship
- 2010: Facebook PhD Fellowship Finalist
- 2009: Best Student Paper, ICDE 2010
- 2009: Qualcomm Innovation Fellowship Finalist
- 2009: SOSP Student Scholarship
- 2009: NSERC PGS-M Graduate Fellowship
- 2008: Frank and Margaret Lucas Fellowship, UC Berkeley

Professional Experience

- UC Berkeley—Berkeley, CA
Graduate Student Researcher May 2009–August 2009
 - Designed and implemented C4, a high-performance dataflow engine designed for parallel and distributed computing.
 - Contributed to an implementation of the Paxos consensus protocol using Overlog, a declarative language for distributed programming.
- Truviso—Foster City, CA
Senior Software Engineer May 2006–August 2006, May 2007–July 2008
 - As the first technical employee, played a key role in the design and implementation of Truviso’s flagship product, a data stream processing system based on PostgreSQL.
 - Implemented the core continuous query processing architecture, as well as numerous features including shared query optimization, stream-table joins, snapshot isolation for continuous queries, archived streams, data ingress, and stream-related DDL.
- PostgreSQL Global Development Group
Major Developer 2002–Present
 - As a CVS committer since 2002, developed numerous PostgreSQL features, fixed bugs, and reviewed countless patches. 300+ CVS commits.

- Fujitsu—Sydney, Australia
Software Engineer September 2004–August 2005
 - Full-time work on PostgreSQL internals. Implemented many PostgreSQL features, and advised customers on database deployment, configuration, and performance tuning.
 - Developed a prototype multi-master synchronous database replication system.
- Microsoft—Redmond, WA
Software Design Engineer (Intern) June 2004–August 2004
 - Project BigTop, a web services incubation team.
 - Wrote a user-level thread scheduler for the .NET CLR, and investigated techniques for efficient OS support for millions of concurrent, lightweight threads.
- Microsoft—Redmond, WA
Software Design Engineer (Intern) May 2003–August 2003
 - Core File Services group, working on an asynchronous filesystem replication service.
 - Developed a specification for consistent replication of filesystem transactions.
 - Developed a tool for automatic replica configuration using P2P networking.
 - Wrote a custom C++ memory allocator to improve simulator performance by 1000%.
- Red Hat—Toronto, Ontario
Software Engineer (Intern) June 2002–August 2002
 - Worked on PostgreSQL internals. Implemented prepared statements, set-returning PL/PgSQL functions, and developed the pg_locks system view.
